

Houston Internship Program

TTU College of Architecture

Studio Updates

The College of Architecture has launched its new website at: <http://www.arch.ttu.edu/>

The studio website can be viewed at:

<http://www.arch.ttu.edu/courses/2005/summerI/4601/default.asp>

The students presented their design development schemes as the first summer session came to a close. Associate Professor Torres-MacDonald has completed the first session and Assistant Professor, Akel Kahera, Phd will teach the remainder of the summer studio.

The presentations were well thought out and are open for viewing by visiting the website and reviewing the team folders. In each folder, you will need to click on the specific assignment, but you can certainly browse through the work in all assignments.

The Menil Collection was begun by the Menil Family in Houston with the building of its first museum by Renzo Piano in 1987.

A special thanks to Andy MacPhillimy of Morris Architects for his lecture last Wednesday.

Andy spoke with the students about the importance of the role of the architect as the team leader in the process of creating architecture. The lecture brought about several questions and we enjoyed the discussion that followed.

Our summer studio is more enriched by the participation of the professionals involved with our internship and we appreciate your support.

MaryAlice Torres-MacDonald, Associate Professor
